NOW in Melbourne

12th September 2017

For many years Hi-tech Tooling has been servicing customers in both Melbourne and Sydney with their tooling and precision engineering needs, traditionally half our sales come from customers that are not based in Queensland and for about the same length of time we have been talking about having a facility in both cities. We are very pleased to announce that last Monday 4th September we began moving into our facility in Melbourne and expect to be fully operational in the next few weeks.

Early this year we set out to establish in Melbourne to support our Victorian customers and grow our sales in this region. In March, we appointed Rodney Brunner as our Customer Engineer based in Melbourne. Rodney came on board as a qualified tradesperson with many years' experience in our target markets and with very high recommendations from several existing customers.

In the very few months that Rodney has been part of our team he has more than met the objectives that he has set for our Melbourne operation and we are very pleased to be accelerating the development of our facility in Hallam. This week the building is being painted and we have made job offers to two tradesmen. We will also advertise this week for an Apprentice. We are expecting to start installing machinery in the coming weeks. As we become more established we will provide more details.
